The Game Of Bridge

After two weeks of play, our Bulletin still has not explained to you what bridge, the game played on the 3rd floor in the Grand Palais, is actually about. Below, you will find a summary.

Contract bridge, or simply bridge, is a trick-taking game using a standard deck of 52 playing cards. It is played by four players in two competing partnerships, with partners sitting opposite each other around a table. Millions of people play bridge worldwide in clubs, tournaments, online and with friends at home, making it one of the world's most popular card games, particularly among seniors.

For purposes of scoring and reference, each player is identified by one of the points of the compass and thus North and South play against East and West. The game consists of several deals each progressing through four phases: dealing the cards, the auction (also referred to as bidding), playing the hand, and scoring the results. Dealing the cards and scoring the results are procedural activities while the auction and playing the hand are the two actively competitive phases of the game.

Dealing: In duplicate bridge (see below) the dealer is predetermined by the board. The board also contains the four hands which have been dealt and placed in the board prior to commencement of the game; these hands are not re-dealt over the course of the event.

Auction or Bidding: The bidding starts with the dealer and rotates around the table clockwise with each player making a call, the purpose being to determine which partnership will contract to take more tricks given a particular trump suit or without trumps (notrump), i.e. the strain. The partnership which makes the highest final bid is known as the declaring side and is said to have 'won' the contract. The player on the declaring side who, during the auction, first stated the suit ultimately becoming trumps (or first stated notrump if that is the final strain) is referred to as the declarer.

Playing: The rules of play are similar to other trick-taking games with the additional feature that the hand of declarer's partner is displayed face up on the table after the opening lead has been made by the member of the defending side to the left of declarer; the displayed hand is referred to as the dummy and is played by declarer.

Scoring: After all thirteen tricks have been played, or after a claim has been made and accepted, the hand's score is determined by comparing the actual number of tricks taken by the declaring partnership with that proposed in the contract and awarding points accordingly. The available scoring points for the declaring side are dependent upon both the level and strain of the contract and are awarded to them only when the contract is 'made', i.e. at least the contracted for number of tricks are won by them; failure to do so results in the defending side's receiving points instead, and they are said to have 'defeated' the contract. Individual scores of several hands are accumulated to determine the overall game score.

The most common competitive game variant is duplicate bridge. That's also what is being played here in Lille. In duplicate bridge, the hands are dealt and played in such a manner that each partnership plays the same set of hands as their East-West or North-South counterparts at other tables and with the scoring based upon relative performance. This game only involves skill as the participants in each of the four compass seats will have to bid and play with the same 13 cards of any particular deal. Organizers of duplicate events may set the pace and duration of play, and group players of similar interests, skill levels, age, or gender, or combinations thereof. The game variant and associated method of scoring have a significant influence on bidding and card-play strategies. Competitions in duplicate bridge range from small clubs with a handful of tables to large tournaments such as the World Bridge Championships here in Lille where players on hundreds of tables play the same hands. National Bridge organizations may define player eligibility and provide country representation in international play.

The Daily Little Interview

A new feature designed to tell you more about some of the participants here in Lille.

Name
Michele Borghetti

What sport do you compete in?
Draughts.

Date of Birth
March 13, 1973.

Place of Birth
Livorno, Italy.

Place of Residence
Livorno, Italy.

I started playing draughts on 100 squares, Italian rules, at home at the age of 12. Shortly afterwards, Mr. Oreste Persico, who was at that time Secretary of the Italian Draughts Federation, offered me a brand new draughts board if I was willing to play in a tournament. I accepted his offer and I am still grateful to him. Later, I graduated from the Liceo (high school) and then started a trading company in alimentary products which I still own.

What kind of food makes you happy?
Italian, of course. We have that long tradition of taking care to cook even the simplest things well. We really want to pay attention to all the things we eat.

And what drink?
Water and a little bit of wine or soft drinks at times.

Who is your favourite author?
Marco Travaglio.

Do you have a favourite actor?
Pierfrancesco Favino.

Actress?
Kathy Bates.

Do you have a favourite painter/artist?
Leonardo da Vinci.

What kind of music do you like to listen to?
I prefer quiet Italian songs, for example by Io, Carlo (artist name of Carlo Fath).

What do you see as your best ever result?
Playing a blind simultaneous event against 23 draughts players. I won 17 games and drew 6.

The interview obviously took place before Michele won the gold medal in the 2nd WMSG checkers event. (ED.)

Is there a draughts book that had a profound influence on you?

Ton Sijbrands' book about Andreiko.

What is the best draughts country in the world?
Russia, with Netherlands a good second.

What are draughts players particularly good at (except for draughts)?
Chess. Strangely enough, the opposite is not very often the case.

What is it you dislike in a person?
Arrogance

Do you have any superstitions concerning draughts?
No.

Which three people would you invite to dinner?
Roberto Saviano (in commemoration of Falcone and Borsellino), On. Franco Barbato (MP) and Beppe Grillo, the stand-up comedian turned politician.

Is there something you'd love to learn?
Playing the guitar.

The Daily Little Interview

A new feature designed to tell you more about some of the participants here in Lille.

Name
Viktor Lin

What sport do you compete in?
Go.

Date of Birth
February 7, 1992.

Place of Birth
Vienna, Austria.

Place of Residence
Vienna, Austria.

He is hoping to be able to resume his study shortly.

Viktor's parents are both from Chinese Taipei. His father is a keen Go player so it's no surprise that Viktor started to study the game at an early age.

What kind of food makes you happy?
Almost anything will do but, please, not too exotic.

And what drink?
Sweet drinks.

Who is your favourite author?
Douglas Adams.

What kind of music do you like to listen to?
I am a musician. I started to play the violin and the piano at the age of 5.

Liszt and Prokofiev are my favourite composers.

Do you have a favourite painter or artist?
Jascha Heifetz is my favourite violinist.

What do you see as your best ever result?
Winning the Austrian national Go championship three times in a row.

Is there a Go book that had a profound influence on you?

Kanzufu, a book full of old Go problems.

What is the best Go country in the world?
China.

What are Go players particularly good at (except for Go)?
Logic.

What is it you dislike in a person?
People who force themselves on you.

Do you have any superstitions concerning Go?
Maybe yes. I often drink Coca-Cola during play and I also like good-luck charms such as, for example, wearing a yellow T-shirt.

Which three people would you invite to dinner?
Justin Bieber, Heinz-Christian Strache and Kim Jong Un.

Is there something you'd love to learn?
Foreign languages.

GO Youth U21

Chinese Taipei team domination continues

The last day of qualification started with taking a group picture of all present participants. All gathered in front of the Grand Palais. After the picture was taken, the battle continued at the go board.

In the previous events men's single, woman's single and team tournament the Chinese Taipei team took already a lot of medals. This success is propagated in the youth tournament.
